- One organization must be the Coordinating Partner that submits the RFQ.
- The consortium should be well-defined with specific goals and an overall vision.

Role of the Coordinating Partner

The Coordinating Partner will be responsible for coordinating the consortium including:

- Acting as main liaison with DHS/OYFLCCYS and the Arts and Culture Department.
- Collecting documentation from different site locations and partners.

- Facilitating regular meetings between the consortium partners.
- Ensuring teaching artists have adequate Children and Youth Services training.

- Daily attendance records are to be kept and submitted weekly to ARTS Engage! staff in addition to the attendance records that are to be kept for monthly invoicing.
- A final attendance roster with students’ name and address and if available phone and email.
- Coordinating any efforts for an ARTS Engage! event.

Funding may be used to hire a Consortium Coordinator or to cover the cost of the staff person managing the program. Funds should only cover the time the full-time staff person is spending on ARTS Engage! and the budget should make clear the hours and cost.

Role of the Primary Partners

Along with the Coordinating Partner there will be Primary Partners who help really develop and shape the program. These partners will have a stronger role than other members who may be providing an important pieces such as a venue or service but may not responsible for the overall development of the program. Primary Partners will be indicated in both the narrative proposal and on the Consortium member form.

Consortium Example-(must include a school for the 2013-2014 program year)

A social service agency applies as the Coordinating Partner. Primary Partners are a Community Center, a local museum, a theatre company and two teaching artists. Other members of the consortium include Goodwill Industries, a middle school, high school students, a housing project and two different colleges.

Elementary Program: A local museum working with a dance company conducts a 16 week elementary arts program on site at the coordinating social service agency with a monthly trip to the museum. An interdisciplinary program is designed around a theme. High school students who need service hours are recruited as well as college students. Goodwill Industries, High school students from the ARTS Engage! high school program are also encouraged to be mentors. They come and do a theatre arts activity with the elementary students.

Middle School Program: Two professional artists including a writer are visual artist are contracted to run an 10 month after-school program at a local middle school working on developing an art installation using writing and visual art. A local property owner with a vacant space agrees to display the final installation and host a community art event. Counseling students from a local college are recruited as mentors and two adults from a local neighborhood association group also act as mentors. They incorporate work that is done by the elementary program into the installation.

High School Program: The community center works with a theatre company that conducts a high school program that takes place on site and at the theatre using college students, those that are studying theatre as mentors and assistants. Students work on both performance and visual aspects of theatre. The goal is a final production at the theatre. Students and their families from the elementary and middle school are invited to attend.

SAMPLE IDEAS TO INVOLVE FAMILIES MORE

- One day out of your program make it a family field trip day where children and their families attend an arts event or visit an arts organization.
- Invite families to participate on a special day. Have pizza or snacks and create a special activity where children must work with their family. Include this in any final exhibits or performances.
- Have a field trip outside of regular class to a show, museum or a First Friday. Provide transportation if possible.
- Have students ask members of their family if is an artistic skill they have always wanted to learn. Help brainstorm a list of ways they can learn the skill. Have a guest speaker day where different artists speak about their art.
- If families have internet access and are on Facebook have them post positive things about the students’ achievements and experience on the ARTS Engage! Facebook page.
